Shipping Terms:

All items purchased from Sydney City Motorcycles are made pursuant to a contract. If you pay for shipping, then shipping terms are FOB Destination. In both cases, and if you pick up your merchandise at our retail location, the title for such merchandise passes to you upon your receipt of the goods, whether received from common carrier or by in-store pick up.

Product Images/descriptions:

Sydney City Motorcycles attempts to be as accurate as possible in our product images and/or descriptions. However, Sydney City Motorcycles does not warrant that product images, descriptions or other content on this site are accurate, complete, reliable, current, or error-free. If a product offered by Sydney City Motorcycles is not as described, your sole remedy is to return it in unused condition.

Merchandise Pricing:

Except where noted otherwise, the "Our Price" displayed for products on our website represents the full retail price in Australian Dollars for the product itself, as suggested by the manufacturer or supplier, or estimated in accordance with standard industry practice; or the estimated retail value for a comparably featured item offered elsewhere. The "Our Price" is a comparative price estimate and may or may not represent the prevailing price in every area on any particular day. For certain items that are offered as a set, the "Our Price" may represent the aggregate of the manufacturer's estimated or suggested retail price for each of the items included in the set. Sydney City Motorcycles can not confirm the price of an item until you order. Despite our best efforts, a small number of the items on our website may be mispriced. If an item's correct price is higher than our stated price, we will, at our discretion, either contact you for instructions before shipping or cancel your order and notify you of such cancellation. If an item's correct price is lower than our stated price, you will only be charged the correct, lower amount.

Our Commitment to Privacy

Sydney City Motorcycles values its customers and respects their privacy. We collect customer information in an effort to improve your shopping experience and to communicate with you about our products, services, contests and promotions. We do not sell or rent your personal information to third parties. Period.

Sydney City Motorcycles will never send you unsolicited email asking you for any personal information. Any e-mail or other communication requesting your password, asking you to provide sensitive account information via email, or linking to a website and any URL that is not linked with Sydney City Motorcycles should be treated as unauthorized/suspicious and should be reported to Sydney City Motorcycles immediately.

Is my information secure?

Sydney City Motorcycles is committed to handling your customer information with the highest standards of information security. We use 128 bit Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) technology to protect your online order information as it is transmitted over the Internet. Additionally, your credit card information is stored only in encrypted form. We restrict access to your personally identifiable information to employees who need to know that information in order to provide products or services to you.

The security of your Sydney City Motorcycles account also relies on your protection of your Sydney City Motorcycles website password. You should not share your Sydney City Motorcycles website password with anyone. Sydney City Motorcycles will never ask you to send your password or other sensitive information to us in an e-mail, although we may ask you to enter this type of information on the Sydney City Motorcycles website.

Credit Card Safety

In an effort to protect the security of your credit card and in accordance with our terms and conditions we require a completed credit card authorisation form for all orders over $750.00.

A landline telephone number, copy of your credit card and state issued license is required to complete the transaction.

Protecting the safety of your credit card information is important to us.

We use Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) technology to protect the security of your credit card information as it is transmitted to us.

SSL is the gold standard in Internet encryption technology, which is a fancy way of saying that it's a highly sophisticated method of scrambling data as it travels from your computer to our website's servers.

Q: How secure is the encryption used by SSL?

A: It would take significantly longer than the age of the universe to crack a 128-bit key.

SSL uses public-key encryption to exchange a session key between the client and server; this session key is used to encrypt the http transaction (both request and response). Each transaction uses a different session key so that even if someone did manage to decrypt a transaction, that would not mean that they would have found the server's secret key; if they wanted to decrypt another transaction, they'd need to spend as much time and effort on the second transaction as they did on the first. Of course, they would have first have to have figured out some method of intercepting the transaction data in the first place, which is in itself extremely difficult. It would be significantly easier to tap your phone, or to intercept your mail to acquire your credit card number than to somehow intercept and decode Internet Data.

Servers and browsers do encryption ranging from a 40-bit secret key to a 128-bit secret key, that is to say '2 to the 40th power' or '2 to the 128th power'. Many people have heard that 40-bit is insecure and that you need 128-bit to keep your credit card info safe. They feel that using a 40-bit key is insecure because it's vulnerable to a 'brute force' attack (basically trying each of the 2^{40} possible keys until you find the one that decrypts the message). This was in fact demonstrated when a French researcher used a network of fast workstations to crack a 40-bit encrypted message in a little over a week. Of course, even this 'vulnerability' is not really applicable to applications like an online credit card transaction, since the transaction is completed in a few moments. If a network of fast computers takes a week to crack a 40-bit key, you'd be completed your transaction and long gone before the hacker even got started.

Of course, using a 128-bit key eliminates this problem because there are 2^{128} instead of 2^{40} possible keys. Using the same method (a networked of fast workstations) to crack a message encrypted with such a key would take significantly longer than the age of the universe using conventional technology. Remember that 128-bit is not just 'three times' as powerful as 40-bit encryption. 2^{128} is 'two times two, times two, times two...' with 128 two's. That is two, doubled on itself 128 times. 2^{40} is already a HUGE number, about a trillion (that's a million, million!). Therefore 2^{128} is that number (a trillion), doubled over and over on itself another 88 times. Again, it would take significantly longer than the age of the universe to crack a 128-bit key.

Doing the math, you can see that using the same method that was used to break 40-bit encryption in a week, it would take about 72 million weeks (about 1.4 million years) to even break '56-bit medium' encryption and significantly longer than the age of the universe to crack a 128-bit key. Of course the argument is that computers will keep getting faster, about doubling in power every 18 months. That is true, but even when computers are a million times faster than they are now (about 20 years from now if they double in speed every year), it would then still take about 6 thousand, trillion years, which is about a million times longer than the Earth has been around. Plus, simply upgrading to 129-bit encryption would take twice as long, and 130-bit would take twice as long again. As you can see, it's far easier for the encryption to keep well ahead of the technology in this case. Simply put, 128-bit encryption is totally secure.

The bottom line is that your credit card information is secure.

To make sure you are accessing our secure server before you submit personal financial information, look at the lower left or right hand corner of your browser. If you see an unbroken key or a closed lock (depending upon your browser), then SSL is active. To double-check for security, look at the URL or Location line of your browser. If you have accessed a secure server, the first characters of the address in that line should change from 'http' to 'https.'

Some browser versions and some firewalls don't permit communication through secure servers like the ones we use to process orders at Sydney City Motorcycles.
